

THE TRANSLATION OF
SOME DIFFICULT TERMINOLOGICAL
CATEGORIES IN THE HOMERIC TEXTS
(Homer, Od., V, 63-75)

Petre Gheorghe BÂRLEA, „Ovidius” University of Constanța
gbarlea@yahoo.fr

Abstract

Our notations start from the idea that the translation of the Homeric poems represents one of the toughest and most significant tests verifying the degree of maturity of literary modern language. The whole of the respective texts contains numerous semantic fields which are extremely difficult to render, in terms of the possibilities of coherent configuration, according to the criterion of a rigorous matching of the signified to the most appropriate lexical signifier. The internal difficulties of any language are largely increased by the attempt to equate terms from another language, even more so when the source language is Homeric Greek, an ideal idiom, attested exclusively in its poetic variant. We illustrated the truth of the matter elsewhere by analysing some names of plants and birds or names of weapons and household objects. In the following pages we are going to look at some names of water courses and deities.

Keywords:

Homeric text, translation, literary Romanian, hydronyms, theonyms.

1. The text analysis centres on the solutions proposed in the six Romanian versions of the Homeric poem the Odyssey, which we have highlighted in our previous studies. We refer to the integral or, in any case, consistent Romanian translations, from the I. Caragiani edition (1876) to the D. Slușanschi edition (1997/2012). The analysis is based on the fragment in Homer's Odyssey, V, 63-75.

Such an undertaking is apt to illustrate, from a fresh perspective, the evolution of the techniques and options of translation, of the respective exegeses, and especially the evolution of the literary Romanian language during the almost 150 years of effort to “naturalise” a masterpiece of world literature in the national culture.

Such terminologies prove the stability of the target language vocabulary in the pre-modern and modern age, the inconsistency of the suitability of the term to its referent, common to any living language and especially in the case of literary texts, the translator’s ability to play with nuances. From this point of view, the way leads from the selection of the term which renders the primary, undiscriminating sense to the fructification of the profound, particular significations. Between these two extremes are situated the simplifications of some translators and the hazardous creations of others.

Here is the text under analysis in its entirety:

ὔλη δὲ σπέος ἀμφὶ πεφύκει τηλεθόωσα, κλήθρη τ’ αἴγειρός τε καὶ εὐώδης κυπάρισσος.
65 ἔνθα δὲ τ’ ὄρνιθες τανυσίπτεροι εὐνάζοντο, σκῶπές τ’ ἴρηκές τε τανύγλωσσοί τε κορῶναι εἰνάλιαι, τῆσιν τε θαλάσσια ἔργα μέμηλεν.
ἢ δ’ αὐτοῦ τετάνυστο περὶ σπείους γλαφυροῖο ἡμερὶς ἠβώωσα, τεθήλει δὲ σταφυλῆσι.
70 κρήναι δ’ ἐξείης πίσυρες ῥέον ὕδατι λευκῶ, πλησίαι ἀλλήλων τετραμμέναι ἄλλυδις ἄλλη.
ἀμφὶ δὲ λειμῶνες μαλακοὶ ἴου ἠδὲ σελίνου θήλεον. ἔνθα κ’ ἔπειτα καὶ ἀθάνατός περ ἐπελθὼν θηήσαιτο ἰδὼν καὶ τερφθεῖη φρεσὶν ἦσιν.
75 ἔνθα στὰς θηεῖτο διάκτορος ἀργεῖφόντης.

(Homer, Od., V, 63-75)

1. From the not really obscure, but rather difficult passages in the text, we remark the image of the four watery courses flowing through the grove at the mouth of the cave. Beyond the key-term, cișmele/fountains, IC; fîntîni/wells, GM vs izvoare/water springs at all the other translators, which opposes the meanings “man-made” and “natural, spontaneous”<sup>1</sup>, the description of the setting and of the water movement, elaborately framed within the Homeric hexameter and wrought during hundreds of years, provoked confusion in modern translations, not solely in those into Romanian.

<sup>1</sup> The original term κρήναι etymologically justifies both, as κρήνη means “izvor, fîntînă/spring, well”, as well as the Latin fons. Only in modern languages did the two meanings become separate. GM even says “fîntîni zidite/walled fountains”. The word chosen by the rhapsode signifies, however, “apa de izvor care curge liniștit/spring-water flowing smoothly”, thus opposed to πηγὴ “izvor care țîșnește/spring gushing forth”.

We are speaking about an ornate and, at the same time, coherent Homeric couplet/dyptic (Od., V, 70-71), in which the adverbs, the adjectives, the affixing and morphemic elements of nouns and verbs enhance the modality meant to express the spectacular flowing of the four streamlets, thus completing the magnificent natural tableau by means of their delicacy, suggestiveness and simplicity. Despite the metric and prosodic constrictions, the Romanian verse translations are all brilliant in their own way, although the ultimate triumph in deciphering the intricate web of visual, auditory and dynamic effects and recasting them wholly, naturally and flowingly into Romanian words is achieved, again, by Dan Slușanschi:

*Unul aproape de altul curgeau, ca o horbotă albă,
Patru izvoare la rând, șopotind spre alt fir fiecare.*

(DS, Od., V, 71-72)

(And fountains four in a row were flowing with bright water hard by one another, turned one this way, one that. - A. T. Murray, <http://www.theoi.com/Text/HomerOdyssey5.html>)

Now, from the outside, the verses appear simple and easy to refashion, insofar as the central idea to be rendered was the symmetry and diversity of the flow of the waters. But, looking back on the struggle of I. Caragiani with the twists of the Greek text and the Romanian language of the 19th century, we have a clear image of the differences:

...din patru cișmele la rând aproape una de alta și întoarse una într-o parte și alta într-alta curge apă limpede. (IC, Od., V, 82)

2. For the names of gods and heroes, we should expand a little the framework of the analysis, going to the last verse of the tableau and the immediately following ones, a passage depicting the ceremonial meeting between the two divinities who discuss the next step to be taken by Odysseus. Hermes is called “Mercury” at EL (56-57), with the usual paraphrases – “zeul cu nuia de aur/the god with the golden wand” (56). All the other versions use the Romanian transliteration of the Greek name, though each with a particular rendering of the Homeric epithets in the text:

IC combines the simple names with diverse cognomens: Hermes (83); vestitorul Hermes/the herald Hermes, omoritorul lui Argus/the slayer of Argus (82); Hermesul cu varga de aur/Hermes of the golden wand (83)

GC alternates the simple name, Hermes (13,1; 13,5; 14,7) with the cognomen without the onomastic determiner, zeule preabune, cu sceptru de aur/most kindly god with a gold sceptre (15,1-2), obviously misunderstanding the significance of the latter symbol<sup>2</sup>.

CP calls him by his proper Greek name, Hermeios (V, 27, 28, 53), preferring, however, metonymies, sometimes through direct loan, Crainicul Argheifontes/the Herald Argheifontes (V, 42), ucigașul lui Argos the slayer of Argos (V, 74); purtător al nuietei de aur, Hermeios/ bearer of the golden wand, Hermeios.

GM retains the simple Greek name – in this case, Hermes (V, 101, 115), alternatively with its name-cognomen group, Hermes cel cu varga de aur/Hermes of the golden wand (V, 116); or the cognomen only, ucigătorul lui Argus/the slayer of Argus (V, 125).

DS combines two cognomens in the same syntagm, călăuzul mai tare ca Argos/the guide greater than Argos (V, 43; 75; 94), when he doesn't use the simple name Hermes (V, 27, 28, 54, 85). The customary usage of the combination Hermes cu varga de aur/Hermes of the golden wand (V, 87) observes, as in other cases, the system in the text, as the formula is used by Calypso, in the welcoming words she addresses to him.

Dan Slușanschi's translation is worth quoting in full, as it constitutes a model of creative adequateness to the source-text:

*Unul aproape de altul curgeau, ca o horbotă albă,
Patru izvoare la rînd, șopotind spre alt fir fiecare.
Iar împrejur o poiană 'nierbată, cu dragi viorele
Și cu brîndușe – și-un nemuritor de-ar ajunge acolo,
Stare-ar să vadă, și iar, desfătîndu-se inima-i foarte!
Astfel stătea și privea Călăuzul mai tare ca Argos.*
(DS, Od., V, 70-75)

3. Even more interesting is the designation of the nymph, in this segment of the fifth book of the poem. Her status in the hierarchy and her charms make her hard to fit into a stable onomastic formula in the Romanian language. She is sometimes nimfă/zîină/cosînzeană/a nymph/a fairy/a fair maid, sometimes zeiță a zînelor/the goddess of the nymphs or

---

<sup>2</sup> The staff, possibly decorated, functioned as a mark of the emissaries, who could not be killed or ill-treated, irrespective of the message they carried, by virtue of an ancient custom. The fact that Hermes's wand was of made of gold, chrysorapis, increases its symbolic and divine significance.

zeiță/goddess in the proper sense, sometimes slăvită, cu păr frumos/the praised, fair-haired one, etc. The one who repeats at least three times the standard Homeric formula, as in the case of Hermes, is I. Caragiani: divina între zeițe Calypso/the divine amongst the goddesses, Calypso. The multiplicity of names in the original text stimulates the translators' creativity, strongly marked by naturalisation:

GM: floarea-între zeițe, Calypso/the flower amongst the goddesses, Calypso (V, 105-106), simplified as zeița/the goddess in other instances, due to the shortness of the blank verse, in the 1928 edition.

CP: zeița Kalypso/the goddess Kalypso (V, 77); zîină/fairy (V, 96); nimfă cu plete frumoase/nymph with beautiful tresses (V, 56); a zeițelor zîină Kalypso/the goddesses' fairy Kalypso (V, 84); Kalypso, zîna zînelor/Kalypso, the fairy of fairies (V, 115-115)

DS: Cosînzeana, nimfa slăvită/the Fair Maid, the praised nymph (V, 56-57); Calypso, zeița-între zîne/ Calypso, the goddess among the fairies (V, 75, 85); zîna Calypso/the fairy Calypso (V, 116)

EL: frumoasa între frumoase Calypso/the fair of the fairest Calypso (V, 53); zîna/the fairy; zîină dragă/fairy dearest; Calypso (V, 56, 57).

In this case we can single out G. Coșbuc, who manages not to name her directly in any way, referring twice to the nymph/nimfă (V, 13, 4; 16,1) or to a she/ea, her/a ei, etc.

As for the rest, Odiseu/Odysseus is Ulise/Ulysses at EL (V, 57) and GM (V, 109), bărbatul cel mai nenorocit dintre barbate/the most wretched of men (GM, V, 140-141 and IC, 83); cel mai nenorocit dintre războinici/the most wretched of warriors (EL, V, 57), mărinimosul Odiseu/the magnanimous Odysseus (IC, 82), etc.; in his turn, Zeus is Joe, at GM (V, 131, 138, 150) and Dumnezeu/God, at EL (V, 57).

Bibliography

1. Sources

1.1. Text editions

- H-II, A-H-C,

Homers, Ilias, K.F. Ameis-C. Hentze-P. Camer, 2 vol. (x 4 facs), ed. 4-8, Leipzig: Teubner, 1905-1932. Reimpr.: Hildesheim, 1970.

- Iliad online version from the Perseus Project (PP) translation and hyperlinks. (Homeri Opera in five volumes. Ed. D. B. Monro/Th. W. Allen, Oxford: University Press, 1920.)

- Odyssey online version from the Perseus Project (PP) translation and hyperlinks (Homer. The Odyssey with an English Translation by A.T. Murray, PH.D. in two volumes. Cambridge, MA.: Harvard University Press; London: William Heinemann, Ltd. 1919.).

1.2. Translations into Romanian

1.2.1. Iliada/Iliad

• CA-I

Omer, Iliada, Tom I. Rapsodiile I-VI. Traducere de D. C. Aristia/The Iliad, Tome I. Cantos I-VI. Translation by de D. C. Aristia. București: Tipografia lui Eliad, 1837. (versuri albe/blank verse)

• GM-I

Homer, Iliada. În românește de George Murnu. Premiul cel Mare al Academiei Române/In Romanian translation by George Murnu. The Great Award of the Romanian Academy. [București]: Cultura Națională, [1920].

• GMd-I

Homer, Iliada. Traducere în metru original de George Murnu. Studiu introductiv și note de D. M. Pippidi. Ediție definitivă/ Translation in the original metre by George Murnu. Introductory study and notes by D. M. Pippidi. Definitive edition. București: Editura pentru Literatură Universală, 1967.

• HD-I

Homer, Iliada. Traducere [în proză] de Radu Hâncu, Sanda Diamantescu/Translation [in prose] by Radu Hâncu, Sanda Diamantescu. Vol. I-II, București: Editura Minerva, 1981.

• GMF<sub>1</sub>-I

Homer, Iliada. Traducere în metru original de George Murnu. Îngrijirea ediției, studiu introductiv, note și glosar de Liviu Franga./Translation in the original metre by George Murnu. Supervision, introductory study, notes and glossary by Liviu Franga. București: Univers, 1985.

• GMF<sub>2</sub>-I

Homer, Iliada. Traducere în metru original de George Murnu. Ediția a II-a, revizuită și adăugită, cu un studiu introductiv nou, note, notă asupra ediției și glosar de Liviu Franga/Translation in the original metre by George Murnu. 2nd edition, with a new introductory study, notes, preface to the edition and glossary by Liviu Franga, București: Editura Fundației Culturale, 1995.

• RH-I

Homer, Iliada. Traducere de Radu Hâncu. Cuvânt înainte de Gabriela Hâncu/Translation by Radu Hâncu. Forward by Gabriela Hâncu, București: Editura Mondoro/Editura Gramar, 2011.

- DS-I

Homer, Iliada. Tradusă în hexametri, cu o postfață, bibliografie și indici de Dan Slușanschi și ilustrată de Mihai Coșulețu/Translated in hexametres, with a postface, bibliography and indices by Dan Slușanschi and illustrated by Mihai Coșulețu, București: Editura Humanitas, 2012.

1.2.2. Odiseea/Odyssey

- IC-O

Odiseea. Batrachomyomachia – Războiul șoarecilor cu broaștele. Traducere în proză, note și prezentări de Ioan Caragiani. Argument. Note asupra ediției de Ion Acsan/The Odyssey. Batrachomyomachia – The War of the Mice and Frogs. Translation in prose, notes and presentations by Ioan Caragiani. Argument. Notes on the edition by Ion Acsan, București: Editura MondoRo, 2011. (Ed. I - Iași: H. Goldner, 1876)

- CP-O

Homer, Odysseia, I-XII. Traducere de Cezar Papacostea, 1929. Introducere, notă asupra ediției, note și indice de Ioana Costa/Translation by Cezar Papacostea, 1929. Introduction, note on the edition, notes and indices by Ioana Costa, București: Editura Muzeului Literaturii Române, 2013.

- EL-Or<sub>1</sub>

Homer, Odiseea. [Traducere de Eugen Lovinescu. Text revizuit și note de Traian Costa. Studiu introductiv și indice de Mihai Nasta/Translation by Eugen Lovinescu. Text revised and annotated by Traian Costa. Introductory study and indices by Mihai Nasta, București: Editura pentru Literatură, 1963. (Ed. I: 1935)

- GC-O

Homer, Odiseea, vol. I-II. Traducere de George Coșbuc. Ediție îngrijită de I. Sfetea și Șt. Cazimir. Prefață de Șt. Cazimir/Translation by George Coșbuc. Edition supervised by I. Sfetea and Șt. Cazimir. Preface by Șt. Cazimir, București: Editura pentru Literatură, 1966. (Mss. 1916).

- EL-Or<sub>5</sub>

Homer, Odiseea (Ediția a 5-a). Traducere de Eugen Lovinescu. Studiu introductiv și indice de Mihai Nasta. Text revăzut și Note asupra ediției de Traian Costa/ Translation by Eugen Lovinescu. Introductory study and indices by Mihai Nasta. Text revision and notes by Traian Costa. Preface by Venera Antonescu, București, București: Editura pentru Literatură, 1963.

- GM-Od

Homer, Odiseea. Traducere de George Murnu. Studiu introductiv și note de D. M. Pippidi. Ediție definitivă/Translation by George Murnu. Introductory study and notes by D. M. Pippidi. Definitive edition, București: Editura Univers, 1971. (Ed. I: 1928)

- GM-O

Homer, Odiseea. Traducere de George Murnu. Studiu introductiv și note de Adrian Pârvulescu/Translation by George Murnu. Introductory study and notes by Adrian Pârvulescu. București: Editura Univers, 1979.

- EL-O

Homer, Odiseea. Traducere în proză de E. Lovinescu. Cuvânt înainte și note de Elena Mazilu-Lovinescu/Translation in prose by E. Lovinescu. Forward and notes by Elena Mazilu-Lovinescu, București: Editura MondoRo, 1995.

- EL-Or<sub>3</sub>

Homer, Odiseea. Traducere de E. Lovinescu. Ediție revizuită și postfață de Traian Diaconescu/ Translation by E. Lovinescu. Edition revised and postface by Traian Diaconescu. București: Saeculum I. O., 1996.

- DS-O

Homer, Odysseia. Traducere în hexametri de Dan Slușanschi/Translation in hexameters by Dan Slușanschi. București: Editura Paideia, 2009.

- DS-Or

Homer, Odysseia. Traducere în hexametri, cu postfață, bibliografie și indici de Dan Slușanschi și ilustrată de Dan Rădvan. Revizuiți și completări de Octavian Gordon și Francisca Băltăceanu/ Translation in hexameters, with post-face, bibliography and indices by Dan Slușanschi and illustrated by Dan Rădvan. Revisions and completions by Octavian Gordon and Francisca Băltăceanu. București: Editura Humanitas, 2012.

2. References

- Ameis/Hentze, 1965

AMEIS, Karl Friederich; HENTZE, Carl, 1965<sup>4</sup>, Anhang zu Homers Ilias, Vol. I.-II, Amsterdam: De Gruyter.

- Ameis/Hentze, 1965

AMEIS, Karl Friederich; HENTZE, Carl, 1965<sup>4</sup>, Anhang zu Homers Odisee, Vol. I.-II, Amsterdam: De Gruyter.

- Aristotel, ed. 1965

ARISTOTEL, Poetica, ed. 1965. Traducere de/ Translation by D. M. Pippidi, București: Editura Academiei.

- Bailly
BAILLY, C.A., 1950, Dictionnaire grec-français, Paris: Hachette.
- Bârlea, 2008
BÂRLEA, Petre Gheorghe, 2008, Limba poveștilor populare românești/The Language of Romanian Fairytales, București: Editura Academiei Române.
- Bârlea, 2014
BÂRLEA, Petre Gheorghe, Româna literară în fața poemelor homerice/Literary Romania Face to Face with the Homeric Poems, în: BÂRLEA, Petre Gheorghe; Toma Felicia Raluca (coord.), 2014, Cultură și comunicare, București: Editura Muzeul Literaturii Române, pp. 27-31.
- Bârlea, 2015a
BÂRLEA, Petre Gheorghe, Autohtonizarea textelor homerice în versiunile sud-est europene, în: Virginia Popovici; Ivana Janjić; Speranța Milancovici; Eugen Gagea (editors), 2015, Communication, culture, creation: New scientific paradigms, Arad/ Novi Sad: Vasile Goldis University Press/ Fundatia Europa, pp. 91-106.
- Bârlea, 2015b
BÂRLEA, Petre Gheorghe, Ipostaze ale homerismului în literatura universală/Hypostases of the Homeric Problem in World Literature, in: Litere, XVI, 3, (180), Târgoviște, 2015, pp. 67-69.
- Chantraine, 2009
CHANTRAINE, Pierre, 2009, Dictionnaire étymologique de la langue grecque. Histoire des mots, Vol. I-II, Paris: Klincksieck.
- Dessons-Meschonnic, 1998
DESSONS, Gérard; MESCHONNIC, Henri, 1998, Traité du rythme. Des vers et des proses, Paris: Dunod.
- Georgescu, 2005
GEORGESCU, N., 2005, Homer – contemporanul nostrum/ Homer – Our Contemporary, în: Recife. Eseuri de oceanografie, București: Editura „Floare Albastră”, pp. 11-51.
- Herescu, 2011
HERESCU, N. I., 2011, Destin fără moarte (Pentru classicism). Ediție îngrijită, notă asupra colecției, notă asupra ediției, studiu introductiv de Liviu Franga/ Immortal Destiny (For Classicism). Edition, note on the collection, note on the edition, introductory study by Liviu Franga, București: Editura Muzeul Literaturii Române.
- Lord, 1960
LORD, Albert, 1960, The Singer of Tales, Massachusetts: Harvard University Press.

- Lovinescu, 2012
LOVINESCU, Eugen, 2012, O privire asupra clasicismului. Ediție îngrijită, studiu introductiv, notă asupra ediției, note și comentarii de Petre Gheorghe Bârlea/A Perspective on Classicism. Edition supervised, introductory study, note on the edition, notes and commentaries by Petre Gheorghe Bârlea, București: Editura Muzeul Literaturii Române.
- Parry, 1971
PARRY, Milman, 1971, The Making of Homeric Verse, in: The Collected Papers of Milman Parry by Adam M. Parry, Oxford: University Press.
- Platon, ed. 1973
PLATON, Opere. Vol. IV. Ediție îngrijită de Petru Creția/ Edition supervised by Petru Creția. București: Editura Științifică și Enciclopedică, 1983.
- Ursu, 1962
URSU, N. A., 1962, Formarea terminologiei științifice românești/The Formation of Romanian Scientific Terminology, București: Editura Științifică.
- Venutti, 1995
VENUTI, Lawrence, 1995, The Translator's Invisibility: A History of Translation. London and New York: Routledge.
- Whitman, 1958
WHITMAN, Cedric H., 1958, Homer and the Homeric Tradition, Cambridge Massachusetts: Harvard University Press.