

THE VOTIVE INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE ROMAN EMPEROR PHILIPPUS ARABSDan Bălțeanu*PhD. student, University of Craiova

*Abstract: The paper deals with the votive inscriptions set up on behalf of Philip the Arab and his family, containing the formula pro salute imperatoris or similar variants or related to other aspects of the imperial cult. The monuments are presented grouped into four categories. In the final part are drawn up few simple statistics regarding the number of divinities attested and the social structure of the dedicators' group.*

*Keywords: Philip the Arab, Roman imperial family, votive inscriptions, imperial cult, pro salute imperatoris formula*

The reign of Philip the Arab (AD 244 – 249) is of particular interest among those of the so-called “barracks emperors” in the third century from at least two points of view: first, it was he who celebrated the millenium of Rome¹; second, during his rule on the Lower Danube area the great invasions of the barbaric populations began². Both events rise to attention the relation between the ruler and his subjects, and the manner in which the latter manifest their support for the state and for its security efforts.

In this paper I will try to build a basic statistics regarding the votive inscriptions set up by various social group or individuals of Roman society on behalf of the emperor. The invocation of gods for the salvation, salvation and health of the emperor was a very common manifestation of subjects' loyalty to their ruler during the Principate³. The image of the relation between the emperor and his subjects during Philip the Arab's reign can be completed with the monuments which document the practices related to the imperial cult. The material will be presented grouped in distinct categories: a) inscriptions dedicated to one or more divinities with the formula pro salute Aug., followed by the name of one or more members of the imperial family, sometimes mentioning the whole domus divina; b) inscriptions dedicated to the Genius or Numen Aug., sometimes along with gods of the roman pantheon; c) inscriptions with the formula in honorem domus divinae, dedicated to a god or to the Genius or Numen Aug.; d) the inscriptions from the Greek speaking areas of the Empire.

a)The inscription with the formula *pro salute Aug.*At the beginning worth to be emphasized that such monuments have not yet been discovered in Dacia, a rather surprising fact considering that monuments pro salute Augusti or imperatoris are documented in this province for all other emperors from the Trajan - Gallienus period, with the exceptions of Philip and those with very short reigns⁴. Taking into account that, as regard the presence of the imperial portraiture in the public space, Dacia offers the greatest numbers of statue bases

¹Dietmar Kienast, Römische Kaisertabelle. Grundzüge einer römischen Kaiserchronologie, Darmstadt: Wissenschaftliche Buchgesellschaft, 1996, p. 198.

² Christian Körner, Philippus Arabs. Ein Soldatenkaiser in der Tradition des antoninisch – severischen Prinzipats, Berlin – New York: Walter de Gruyter, 2002, pp. 134-157.

³ Duncan Fishwick, The Imperial Cult in the Latin West. Studies in the Ruler Cult of the Western Provinces of the Roman Empire. Volume III: Provincial Cult. Part 3: The Provincial Centre; Provincial Cult, (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 147), Leiden-Boston: Brill, 2004, p. 352.

⁴ Maria-Adriana Airinei, Formula pro salute imperatoris și semnificația ei în Dacia romană, in Buletinul Cercurilor Științifice Studentești. Arheologie-Istorie-Muzeologie, 20, 2014, with statistic by emperors at p. 81.

for the three members of Philip's family, this situation have to be regarded as an expression of the actual state of archaeological findings⁵.

In the neighboring province, Moesia Inferior, in regio Histriae, two votive inscriptions built for the emperor's salvation are known. The first of them was dedicated to Iupiter and Iuno by the community of cives Romani et Lai consistentes vico Secundini, by the care of local magistrates in AD 246⁶. This inscription is part of a series of altars raised for the salvation of the emperors by the local community, as monuments for Septimius Severus and Caracalla, Elagabalus, Maximinus Thrax and Gordianus III are also documented⁷. The second altar, probably dedicated to Iupiter, was set up in Cius, being built by the *archontes regionis Histriae*⁸. North of the Black Sea, a territory controlled by the army of Moesia Inferior⁹, at Olbia, a soldier with a Thracian name raises, for the salvation of the two Philips, an altar to Mercurius, in AD 248 AD. The text is somewhat ambiguous¹⁰, as after pro salute, a date by the names of the consuls follows, which, in this case, are the two Philips, but the fact that the dedicator makes no other mention of the person for whose salvation he set the inscription hints that he was referring to the two Augusti.

At Serdica, in the province of Thrace, a veteran of the Legio V Macedonica dedicated a monument to Iupiter for the salvation of Philip and perhaps also that of his son¹¹. In Dalmatia, two votive inscriptions erected for the emperor are known: the first of these is a dedication for Iupiter, Liber and Terra Mater, built by the Iucundus, vilicus ferrariarum in Ljubija for all three members of the imperial family in 247 or 248¹²; the second, with an unknown finding place, was raised by a beneficiarius from the Legio I Adiutrix (the name of the divinity is unknown in the current state of the monument)¹³.

Only one inscription from this category is known in Rome, and it belongs to a soldier from the praetorian cohorts, who likely dedicated it to Silvanus¹⁴. Three such dedications are known in the regions of Italy: on July 23rd, 244, the soldiers of the Legio II Parthica set an altar to Victoria redux dd. nn. Imp. Caes. M. Iuli Philippi. Pii Felicis Aug. et Otaciliae Severae Aug, a monument which is considered to mark the return of the emperor from the eastern military campaign¹⁵. In Umbria, at Urvinum Mataurense, Aurelius Munatius, an evocatus from a praetorian cohort, who led a group of 20 soldiers who were maintaining order in the region, raises an altar to Victoria for the salvation of the three members of the ruling

⁵ 15 statue bases for the members of imperial are published at the current date from Dacia: 9 set up by military units: IDR, II, 10; 500; IDR, III/3, 58; 59; 214; 269; ILD 668; AE 2006, 1127; AE 2012, 1211; 1 by the council of the province IDR III/2, 81 (for Philip) and 5 by municipalities: AE, 2006, 1102 (for Philip); AE, 2005, 1275 (for Otacilia); ILD, 669 (Philip I); 670 (Philip II); 671 (Otacilia)

⁶ISM 1, 349. For the organisation of the local rural community see Alexandru Suceveanu, Contributions à la connaissance du village de la Dobroudja à l'époque Romaine, in Opuscula Scythica, Bucharest: Editura Academiei Române, 2009, pp. 220-221.

⁷ ISM 1, 343; 344; 345; 346; 347.

⁸ ISM 5, 124 For the character of the territory of Histria during the Principate: Florian Matei-Popescu, Statutul juridic și teritoriul Histriei în epoca romană, in Florina Panait-Bîrzescu, Iulian Bîrzescu, Florian Matei-Popescu, Adrian Robu (eds.), Poleis în Marea Neagră: relații interpontice și producții locale (Poleis in the Black Sea Area: Inter-Pontic Relations and Local Productions), Bucharest: Humanitas Publishing House, 2013, pp. 216-217; Idem, The Western Pontic Greek Cities and the Roman Army, in Victor Cojocaru, Christof Schuler (eds.), Die Außenbeziehungen pontischer und kleinasiatischer Städte in hellenistischer und römischer Zeit. Akten einer deutsch-rumänischen Tagung in Constanța, 20. – 24. September 2010, Stuttgart: Franz Steiner, 2014, pp. 189-190.

⁹ Idem, The Roman Army in Moesia Inferior, Bucharest: Conphys Publishing House, 2010, pp. 51; 87.

¹⁰*Pro salute{m} / Imp(eratoribus) d(ominis) nn(ostris) / Philippo Aug(usto) / III et Philip(po) Imp(eratoribus) co(n)s(ulibus) / ara(m) Mercurio posu(it) / Py{y}rr(h)us Bi{th}us mil(es)*

¹¹ CIL 3, 14207, 17. For commentary of the language in this inscription: Ernst Kalinka, Antike Denkmäler in Bulgarien, Wien: Alfred Hölder, 1905, p. 125.

¹²CIL, III, 13240.

¹³ CIL, III, 3161 = CBI 499.

¹⁴CIL, VI, 2830 = 32555.

¹⁵CIL VI, 793 = XIV, 2258; Dennis E. Trout, Victoria Redux and the First Year of the Reign of Philip the Arab, in Chiron, 19, 1989, p. 222; Kienast, op. cit., p. 198.

family. The inscription is dated March (?) 10th 246 (the month is uncertain)¹⁶. The last dedication from Italy, an altar to Mithra, comes from Parentium (Venetia et Histria) and was raised for the salvation and victory of the three members of the house of Philip by two freed men from the administration¹⁷.

In Pannonia Inferior, the inhabitants of multiple rural communities from the territory of Aquincum raised an altar to Terra Mater for the salvation of the two emperors¹⁸. Another altar from Aquincum dedicated to Mars, Victoria and Fortuna Redux, erected between AD 244 and 247 for the salvation of the emperor and the young Caesar was set by Alfius Avitus, who was either the legate of Pannonia Inferior¹⁹, or legate of the *Legio II Adiutrix*²⁰, which was garrisoned there. An interesting monument dedicated Adventui dd. nn. at Aquincum, is also of note, albeit is not a votive inscription, but it emphasize the persistence of the Adventus theme, attested in coinage for AD 245²¹ and maybe for 247²², in the imperial propaganda in AD 248 (even the two categories of sources, the official minting and the provincial epigraphy are not to be compared). It was built probably by soldiers originating from Crete²³.

In Gallia Narbonensis, two taurobolia for Magna deum Mater (Cybele) are documented, both performed for the salvation of the three members of the imperial family, and both of them dated to AD 245. The first was erected by the residents of Nemausus and the second by L. Dagidius Marius, pontifex perpetuus civitatis Valentiae and by the inhabitants of Arausus, civitas Albensis and Dea Augusta Vocontiorum. The rituals number among those regularly carried out in honor of Cybele in Gallia Narbonensis for the salvation of the emperors²⁴.

Four votive inscriptions set for the salvation of the emperor are known in the African provinces. In Volubilis, Mauretania Tingitana, a monument belonging to the so-called "autels de la paix", was erected in April 22nd, AD 245 by M. Maturius Victorinus, procurator pro legato. The altar was built with the occasion of one of the eleven meetings between Roman governors and leaders of the semi-nomadic Baquates population, which were documented between AD 173 and 280. Dedicatory formula is I. O. M., ceterisque dis deabusque immortalibus pro salute et incolunitate et victoria Imperatoris (Philip the Young and the empress being mentioned)²⁵. At Lambaesis, in Numidia, an *ignotus, leg. Augg., v.c.*²⁶ set an altar to Mars, Minerva and Mercurius. In the same province, at Tazembout, the two magistri of a rural community dedicated and altar to Iupiter Optimus Maximus for the salvation of the ¹⁶CIL XI, 6107; Michael Peachin, Which Philip?, in Zeitschrift für Papyrologie und Epigraphik, 73, 1988, p. 99-100.

¹⁷CIMRM, 1, 754.

¹⁸AE 2005, 1265; dated AD 247 – 249.

¹⁹Jenő Fitz, Legati Augusti Pro Praetore Pannoniae Inferioris, in Acta Antiqua Academiae Scientiarum Hungariae, 11, 1963, p. 295-297.

²⁰Michel Christol, Xavier Lorient, P. Alfius Avitus et P. Plotius Romanus, gouverneurs de Galatie, in L'antiquité classique, 70, 2001, pp. 102-103.

²¹Samuel K. Eddy, The Minting of the Antoniniani and the Smyrna Hoard. American Numismatic Society. Numismatic Notes and Monographs No. 156, New York: American Numismatic Society, 1967, p. 97.

²²Xavier Lorient, Chronologie du règne de Philippe l'Arabe (244 – 249 après J. C.), in Hildegard Temporini, Wolfgang Haase (eds.), Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt, II/2, Berlin – New-York: Walter de Gruyter, 1975, p. 793, n. 23.

²³CIL III, 3633, with the lecture of Géza Alföldy, Epigraphica Pannonica I. Inschriften aus der näheren Umgebung von Aquincum, in Zeitschrift für Papyrologie und Epigraphik, 140, 2002, pp. 264-265, no. 1 = AE 2002, 1186. Cretenses could refer to soldiers of a cohors I Cretum, as argued Lorenzo Cigaina, Der Kaiserkult bei den Kretern in Bezug auf ihre Teilhabe am Militärwesen des römischen Reiches, in Anne Kolb, Marco Vitale (eds.), Kaiserkult in den Provinzen des Römischen Reiches. Organisation, Kommunikation und Repräsentation, Berlin – Boston: Walter de Gruyter, 2016, p. 320.

²⁴AE 1910, 217 = 1924, 26; CIL XII, 1667. Fishwick 2004, op. cit., p. 355; Robert Duthoy, The Taurobolium. Its Evolution and Terminology, (Études préliminaires aux religions orientales dans l'Empire romain, 10), Leiden: E. J. Brill, 1969, p. 68-71.

²⁵AE 1954, 110. For the series of meetings with Baquates: Bahmi Néjat Bahmi, Les colloquia romano-baquates: patronage divin et intégration?, in Étrangers dans la cité romaine, Actes du colloque «Habiter une autre patrie»: des incolae de la République aux peuples fédérés du Bas-Empire, Rennes: PUR, 2007, pp. 155-170; Clifford Ando, Aliens, Ambassadors, and the Integrity of the Empire, in Law and History Review, 26, 3, 2008, pp. 491-519.

²⁶Legate of Numidia and of the Legio III Augusta. For Philip the Arab's reign, only M. Aurelius Cominius Cassianus is attested: Yann Le Bohec, La Troisième Légion Auguste (Études d'antiquités africaines), Paris : Éditions du Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, 1989, p. 126.

Augusti with their domus divina, but also for the legate *M. Aurelius Cominius Cassianus*²⁷. In Africa proconsularis, at Abitina, an altar to Iupiter and Pluto was discovered, raised by a Q. Accius Rogatianus Caecilianus sacerdos maximus, for the salvation of the imperial family²⁸.

b) The image of the relation between the emperor and his subjects during Philip the Arab's reign can be completed with another category of monuments: those which document the practices related to the imperial cult, i.e. the inscriptions which record dedications to the Numen or to the Genius of the emperor²⁹. In Britannia, cohors II Gallorum, garrisoned at Voreda, built an altar dedicated to Iupiter and to *Genius dd. nn*³⁰. At Caerleon, in the principia of the Legion II Augusta's fortress, M. Valerius Felix, the primuspilus of the legion, dedicated an inscription to Numina Augg and to the Genius of the legion³¹.

In Africa proconsularis, the citizens of the municipium Iulium Philippianum Abbir Cellense built, in AD 246, through decree of the decuriones and with public funds, a monument dedicated to the Genio imperii dd. nn. (both emperors are mentioned), an action prompted by the municipal status the settlement received during the Philip's reign³².

c) In this category are included the inscriptions related to the imperial cult containing the formula *in honorem domus divinae*³³. One of these was dedicated to Numina Augg., in honorem domus divinae at Beda, in Gallia Belgica and was built by the youth association of the community: iuniores vici hic consistentes, in a public place donated to them by the local community³⁴. No matter the role (military, political, educational, as sport or religious associations)³⁵, these youth unions had in the provinces on the western European limes, most of their public manifestations consist of inscriptions related to the imperial cult (dedications in honorem domus divinae) or altars *pro salute Aug*³⁶.

At Niederbieber (Germania superior) a group of soldiers (baioli and vexillarii) built, out of their own revenues, the statue of a Genius for a collegium signiferorum Victoriensium with the dedication in honorem d. d. dated September 23rd, 246, the anniversary of the birthday of Octavianus Augustus³⁷. The troops garrisoned at Niederbieber (numerus Brittonum and numerus exploratorum Germanicianorum Divitiensium) raised 8 such monuments for different Genii, all of them traced to the third century, between the reigns of Caracalla and Philip the Arab³⁸. A dedication to Iupiter was raised in honorem domus divinae at Divio ²⁷AE 1989, 895. For Cassianus, see the note above. Together with the two magistri appear as dedicators the seniores loci, probably the more prominent figures of the community, attested also during the Late Empire: Cam Grey, Constructing Communities in the Late Roman Countryside, New York: Cambridge University Press, 2011, pp. 93-94.

²⁸CIL VIII, 25842 = SIRIS 780 (where Ladislav Vidman restored the name of Serapis as the third deity to whom the altar was dedicated to. This restoration was rejected by Laurent Bricault, Yann Le Bohec, Jean-Louis Podvin, Cultes isiaques en Proconsulaire, in Laurent Bricault (ed.), Isis en Occident. Actes du IIème Colloque international sur les études isiaques, Lyon III 16-17 mai 2002 (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 151), Leiden – Boston: Brill, 2003, p. 240, n. 142.

²⁹Duncan Fishwick, The Imperial Cult in the Latin West. Studies in the Ruler Cult of the Western Provinces of the Roman Empire. Volume II, 1, Leiden-New York-København-Köln: E. J. Brill, 1991, pp. 382-384 (with the discussion regarding the distinction between Genius and Numen Imperatoris).

³⁰CIL VI, 315 = RIB I, 915.

³¹CIL VII, 103 = RIB I, 327.

³²CIL VIII, 12344. The settlement was documented previously as civitas: CIL VIII, 893; Jacques Gascou, La politique municipale de Rome en Afrique du Nord II. Après la mort de Septime-Sévère, in Hildegard Temporini, Wolfgang Haase (eds.), Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt, II/2, Berlin – New-York: Walter de Gruyter, 1982, pp. 280-281.

³³Duncan Fishwick, op. cit., pp. 424-435 (the discussion regarding the domus divina).

³⁴CIL XIII, 4131.

³⁵Christian Laes, Johan Strubbe, Youth in the Roman Empire. The Young and the Restless Years?, Cambridge: University Press, 2014, pp. 122-123

³⁶Alain Bouet, Campus et Juventus dans les agglomérations secondaires des provinces occidentales, in Revue des Études Anciennes, 101, 3-4, 1999, pp. 477-481.

³⁷CIL XIII, 7754. For commentary: Peter Herz, Das römische Heer und der Kaiserkult in Germanien, in Wolfgang Spickermann (ed.), Religion in den germanischen Provinzen Roms, Tübingen : Mohr Siebeck, 2001, p. 99. Baioli probably a particular form for the word baiuli, messengers documented as operating in numeri: Yann Le Bohec, The Imperial Roman Army, translation by Raphael Bate, London-New York: Routledge, 1994, p. 58, n. 118.

³⁸CIL XIII, 7749; 7750; 7751; 7752; 7753; 7754; 11972.

(Dijon) in Germania superior by a private person, Pudentianus, Putti f., and is dated to Philip the Arab's last year of rule³⁹.

In the same province, an inscription discovered at Jagsthausen could be of particular interest for the chronology of military events during the reign of Philip. Here, Valerius Valerianus, tribune of the cohors I Germanorum set a dedication to Fortuna balnearis redux in AD 248⁴⁰. The inscription was placed in the "small baths" of the auxiliary camp, a construction that was repaired in the first part of Philip's reign (AD 244-247)⁴¹. Assuming that this dedication to Fortuna redux implies movement of the unit, then the cohort likely participated in a military campaign. Such events could happen on the limes of Germany, but also the date of the inscription (AD 248) allows another conjecture. It is documented that one of the legions stationed in Germania superior, legio XXII Primigenia, garrisoned at Mainz, took part, at least with a vexillatio, in the campaign against the Carpi, on Lower Danube⁴². The soldiers of the legio XXII Primigenia were also involved in the construction of the ramparts surrounding Romula, the capital of Dacia Malvensis, built probably after the end of military operations. These construction works ended in AD 248⁴³. If could be accepted that cohors I Germanorum was tactically related to the legion from Mainz, it is possible that a part of the cohort was deployed on the Danubian front, and the invocation to Fortuna redux in AD 248 could indicate the year when the units from Philip's campaign army returned to their garrisons.

d) In the epigraphic habit of the Greek speaking provinces, the salutary ideology in relation with the imperial family is expressed by the formula ὑπὲρ ὑγείας καὶ σωτηρίας (corresponding to Latin pro salute et incolumitate) in more or less extended variants. For the reign of Philip, two, maybe three inscriptions containing this formula are known in the Near East⁴⁴. On the architectonic elements of a temple of Dmer, two such inscriptions appear. First of them was set by two hierotamiai (treasurers) of the temple: Marcus Aurelius Haneos and Gauros. The inscription was carved "on the eastern wall of the temple, between the two pilasters at the right of the portal"⁴⁵. The second was inscribed "on a lintel of the western portal". The dedicator is Marcus (?) Annianus, a strator from ala Vocontiorum. This inscription, containing the formula ὑπὲρ σωτηρίας τῶν Κυρίων Αὐτοκρατόρων, but without the name of the emperors, was related with the reign of Philip by William Prentice on paleographic arguments⁴⁶. In Philip's birthplace, where he founded a colony named Philippopolis, three members of the local council set an inscription ὑπὲρ σωτηρίας τῶν

³⁹ CIL XIII, 5473.

⁴⁰ CIL XIII, 6552. For the epithet balnearis: Jacqueline Champeaux, Fortuna. Le culte de la Fortune à Rome et dans le monde romain. II. Les transformations de Fortuna sous la République, (Publications de l'École française de Rome, 64-2), Rome: École Française de Rome, 1987, p. 102. For the links between Fortuna and the waters in military environment: Sabino Perea Yébenes, Baños para soldados y el culto de Fortuna, in María Jesús Pérex Agorreta (ed.), Termalismo antiguo. I Congreso peninsular: Actas: Arnedillo (La Rioja), 3-5 octubre 1996, Madrid: UNED, 1997, pp. 149-168.

⁴¹ CIL XIII, 6562. Andreas Thiel, Das Kastellbad von Jagsthausen – ein Beispiel für die archäologische Denkmalpflege in den 90er Jahren, in Denkmalpflege in Baden-Württemberg. Nachrichtenblatt des Landesdenkmalamtes, 25, 1996, 4, pp. 246-247; Christian Körner, op. cit., p. 235, n. 22.

⁴² Ioan Piso, Războiul lui Philippus cu carpii, in In memoriam Constantini Daicovicu, Cluj-Napoca: Dacia, 1974, pp. 305 – 306. The presence of the legion is attested at Romula: IDR II, 325-326.

⁴³ IDR II, 324.

⁴⁴ Jason Moralee, For Salvation's Sake. Provincial Loyalty, Personal Religion, and Epigraphic Production in the Roman and Late Antique Near East (Studies in Classics. Outstanding Dissertations. 3), New York – London: Routledge, 2004, p. 36, table 13.

⁴⁵ Prentice, p. 284, no. 357.

⁴⁶ IGRRP III, 1094 = Prentice, pp. 285-286, no. 358. Jason Moralee, op. cit., p. 110, no. 80 keeps the reserves concerning the attribution of the inscription to the reign of Philip. The divinity or divinities worshipped in the temple of Dmer rest unknown. Recently it was argued that the temple was dedicated to the imperial cult of Philip and Otacilia: Arthur Segal, Religious architecture in the Roman Near East: temples of the basalt lands (Trachon and Hauran), in Ted Kaizer, The Variety of Local Religious Life in the Near East in the Hellenistic and Roman Periods (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 164), Leiden – Boston: Brill, 2008, p. 101, n. 10. This hypothesis sustains the datation of Prentice for the dedication of Annianus.

Κυρίων Αὐτοκρατόρων, without mention of a particular divinity. The monument is dated in AD 244, first year of the *colonia*⁴⁷.

In the province of Thrace the habit of dedicating for salvation of the emperor the milestones set in the territories of Greek speaking cities is attested. Such monuments are known in the territories of Pautalia, Serdica, Augusta Traiana, Traianopolis, Philippopolis, all of them being placed on behalf of Philip I and Marcia Otacilia Severa. In one case, the dedication is made for the salvation of the imperial couple together with the August family, the Senate and the Roman people⁴⁸.

None of the Greek inscriptions are addressed to a specific divinity. The 25 Latin inscriptions mentioned above can be distributed as follows: 18 fall into the category with the formula pro salute Aug., 3 are dedicated to Genius and Numen Aug., and 4 contain the formula in honorem domus divinae (all of the latter are located in the Western European provinces). Apart from the Genius and Numen of the emperor, 15 divinities are worshipped. Iupiter Optimus Maximus appears in 7 (maybe 8) dedications, alone (in two inscriptions) or, in most of the cases, along with other deities: Iuno (1), Pluto (1), Liber and Terra Mater (1), Mars, Minerva and Mercurius (1). In one case Iupiter is associated with the Genius of the emperors, and in another all immortal gods are venerated along with the supreme deity. In addition to Iupiter, 4 of the 12 dii consentes are worshipped. Mars (appearing once alongside Victoria and Fortuna Redux) and Mercurius appear on two altars each. Iuno appears only once, with Iupiter. Only one inscription is dedicated to Minerva. Of the agricultural deities, Silvanus, Liber Pater and Terra Mater (two occurrences, one together with Liber) are worshipped. Pluto is documented only once, together with Iupiter in Africa proconsularis, where his cult was very popular⁴⁹. In the above samples, two personifications are also encountered: Fortuna appears in two dedications, in both of them accompanied by the epithet redux, at Jagsthausen being worshipped as Fortunabalaris redux; Victoria is addressed through three altars, two times alone and once with Mars and Fortuna. Cybele is attested twice, in the two taurobolia ceremonies in Gallia Narbonensis. Two Genii are attested, both linked with military units. Finally, one altar is dedicated to Mithra. Statistics applied to the monuments erected pro salute Aug., show that 15 monuments (83,33%) have been erected for gods of the Graeco-Roman pantheon, and two others (11,11%) are related to Cybele, an oriental deity officially introduced into the Roman pantheon⁵⁰. Only one monument was dedicated to Mithra (5,56%), which is somewhat surprising considering the spread of his cult in the middle of the IIIrd century.

⁴⁷ IGRRP III, 1196 = Prentice, p. 309-310, no. 395. The president of the council was at that time a certain Marrinos, identified with Philip's father: Christian Körner, op. cit., pp. 51-52. The exact use of this monument, found in a secondary position, built in a wall of a modern construction, rest unclear for me (see the picture in Prentice, p. 309). The use of plural form Κυρίων Αὐτοκρατόρων (the Greek correspondent for Augg.) on a text dated in AD 244 confirms the observation of Harold Mattingly and Edward Sydenham in RIC IV/3, p. 57 that the formula Augustorum during the reign of Philip refers to the imperial family, and can not be a criterion for dating a numismatic or epigraphic text after AD 247. Also other epigraphic examples can be quoted: CIL III, 10174 (Bihac, Dalmatia): [Imp(erator) Caes(ar) M(arcus) Iul(ius) / [P]hi[li]pp[us] Aug(ustus) / tr(ibunicia) pot(estate) [co(n)s(ul) p(ater) p(atriciae)] / p[r]oco(n)s(ul) et / [M(arcus) I]ul(ius) Philippus / nob(ilissimus) Caes(ar) co(n)s(ul) / cur(ante) Cl(audio) Heren(niano v(iro) c(larissimo) leg(ato) / Augg(ustorum) pr(o) pr(aetore)]; CIL XII, 1567 (Augusta Vocontiorum, Gallia Narbonensis): ... pro salute Imp(eratoris) et Caesar(is) / Philipporum Augg(ustorum) – dated 245 AD: Imp(eratore) Philippo Aug(usto) et Titi(ano) co(n)s(ulibus).

⁴⁸ Pautalia (AE 1913, 0175, Philip and Otacilia), Serdica (SEG, 28, 1978, 589 = AE, 1978, 721; SEG, 28, 1978, 590 = AE, 1978, 722; SEG, 28, 1978, 591 = AE, 1978, 723; IGRRP, 1, 695 = IGBulg 2032; SEG, 15, 1958, 458 = IGBulg 2037), Augusta Traiana (AE 1892, 10 = IGRRP I 757 = 1495 = IGBulg 1700; AE 1965, 346 = IGBulg 1710; IGRRP I, 758 = IGBulg 1591), Traianopolis (SEG 46, 843), Philippopolis (IGRRP I, 1478 = IGBulg, 911: [ὑπὲρ νίκης καὶ αἰωνίου διαμ]ονῆς τῶν θεοσιῶτων Σεβ(αστῶν) / [M(άρκου) Ἰουλίου Φιλίππου καὶ Ὠτακίλι]ας Σεουήρας καὶ ἱερᾶς / [συγκ]<λ>ήτ<ο>υ κ<αὶ δῆ>μου τοῦ Ῥωμ<α>ίων καὶ τοῦ σύμπαντος / [τῶν Σεβαστῶν οἴκου; IGRRP I, 1479 = IGBulg, 900).

⁴⁹ Alain Cadotte, La romanisation des dieux. L'interprétation romaine en Afrique du Nord sous le Haut-Empire, (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 158), Leiden – Boston: Brill, 2007, pp. 325-330.

⁵⁰ Mary Beard, John North, Simon Price, Religions of Rome. Vol 1, Cambridge: University Press, 1998, p. 83.

Regarding the total of 25 Latin monuments, in three cases (25%) the dedicators are either governors or legates of the legion: Alfius Avitus (the legate of Pannonia Inferior or the legion II Adiutrix); an ignotus, legate of the Legio III Augusta. Both of them belong to of the senatorial order. A monument is built by a member of the equestrian order, procurator pro legato in Mauretania Tingitana. Ten monuments (40%) were erected by soldiers. In two cases, the entire unit contributed to raising the monument (Leg. II Parthica and coh. II Gallorum); other monuments were erected by commanders of units or detachments: the tribune of the cohors I Germanorum and the commander of the peace keeping detachment in Umbria. Four of them are, however, individual acts which have a beneficiarius, two milites and a veteran as dedicators. The monuments of the soldiers, as well as those of high ranking public officials, are set exclusively for deities of the Graeco-Roman pantheon.

Eight monuments (28%) were built by civil communities or associations: two of them by civitates from Gallia Narbonensis, one of them by municipium of Abbir Cella (being the only inscription set by a community with municipal status), one by several rural communities in Pannonia, another by magistrates of the rural area of Histria, one by a community of cives Romani and Lai in a vicus from Dobrogea, one by the youth association in vicus Beda, and the last one by the magistri of a rural settlement in Numidia. Finally, two monuments (8%) belong to freed men from administration (one of which contains the only mention of Mithra), another (4%) was raised by a man occupying a role in the clergy, and the last one was set by a private person (4%).

In some situations we can establish, even if merely hypothetically, the motivation for which the dedicators summoned the gods. In many situations, religious practices as part of older traditions are proved: the two taurobolia in Gallia Narbonensis, the altar of peace in Mauretania Tingitana or the dedication of the community of Roman citizens and Lai from vicus Secundini, who in the first half of the IIIrd century erected such altars for other emperors. The rural communities in Pannonia (a pagus and several vici) built a dedication to Terra Mater with the occasion of field purification rituals⁵¹. The dedication of the municipium Abbir Cella is related probably with the municipal status received during the reign of Philip.

The dedications of military units or individual soldiers can be linked in some cases with their participation to campaigns or other military operations. The legio II Parthica offered thanks to Victoria Redux in July 23rd, 244 for their return from the campaign in the East. Aurelius Munatianus, the commander of the detachment which fought brigands in Umbria, calls upon Victoria to aid him in the mission.

As regard the motivations of the dedicators, some monuments require special attention. The dedication to Mars, Victoria and Fortuna Redux in Aquincum, which can be linked with a high amount of probability with the beginning or the end of a campaign, was erected by the legate Alfius Avitus before Philip II's rise as Augustus (AD 244-247. Aurelius Bithus, the soldier with a Thracian name who invoked Mercurius, the patron of the travellers at Olbia in AD 248, could have been one of the soldiers of the units dispatched in the North of the Black Sea to aid in military events that took place here. The dedication from Jagsthausen, also erected in AD 248, could mark the return of the unit from a mission in the military campaigns maybe in the area of the Lower Danube.

Surely, most dedications are conventional, but the obvious conclusion of this basic statistics is that the sample, despite its limited size, shows a noteworthy adhesion to the cults of the traditional Graeco-Roman pantheon when dedications concerned the salvation of the emperor are made⁵².

⁵¹ Kovács Péter, Territoria, pagi and vici in Pannonia, in Werner Eck, Bence Fehér, Péter Kovács (eds.), Studia Epigraphica in memoriam Géza Alföldy, (Antiquitas. Reihe 1. Abhandlungen zur Alten Geschichte, 61), Bonn: Rudolf Habelt, 2013, p. 137.

Abbreviations

- AE L'Année épigraphique, Paris, 1988 –
- CIL Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum, vol. I (1873) – XVI (1936).
Berlin : Georg Reimer
- CBI Egon Schallmayer, Kordula Eibl, Joachim Ott, Gerhard Preuss, Esther Wittkof, Der römische Weihebezirk von Osterburken I, Corpus der griechischen und lateinischen Beneficiarii – Inschriften des Römischen Reiches, Stuttgart: Konrad Theiss, 1990.
- CIMRM Maarten Jozef Vermaseren, Corpus Inscriptionum et Monumentorum Religionis Mithriacae. Vol. I, Haga: Martinus Nijhof, 1956.
- IGBulg Georgi Mihailov, Inscriptiones Graecae in Bulgaria repertae, I-IV, Sofia: Academia Litterarum Bulgarica, 1958 – 1970.
- ILD Constantin C. Petolescu, Inscriptii latine din Dacia, Bucharest: Academia Română, 2005.
- ISM ISM Inscriptiile din Scythia Minor. I - V, Bucharest: Academia Română, 1983-2015.
- Prentice William Kelly Prentice, Greek and Latin Inscriptions. Part III of the Publications of an American Archaeological Expedition to Syria in 1899–1900. New York: Century Co, 1908.
- RIB Robin George Collingwood, Richard Pearson Wright, The Roman Inscriptions of Britain I: Inscriptions on stone, Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1965 [1995].
- RIC The Roman Imperial Coinage. I - X, London: Spink and Son, 1923 – 1994.
- SEG Supplementum Epigraphicum Graecum, on-line version [<http://referenceworks.brillonline.com/browse/supplementum-epigraphicum-graecum>]
- SIRIS Ladislav Vidman, Sylloge inscriptionum religionis Isiacae et Sarapiacae, (Religionsgeschichtliche Versuche und Vorarbeiten, 28), Berlin: Walter de Gruyter & Co., 1969.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- Airinei, Maria-Adriana, Formula pro salute imperatoris și semnificația ei în Dacia romană, in Buletinul Cercurilor Științifice Studentești, 20, 2014, pp. 71-82.
- Clifford Ando, Aliens, Ambassadors, and the Integrity of the Empire, in Law and History Review, 26, 3, 2008, p. 491-519.
- Alföldy, Géza, Epigraphica Pannonica I. Inschriften aus der näheren Umgebung von Aquincum, in Zeitschrift für Papyrologie und Epigraphik, 140, 2002, pp. 263-277.
- Bahmi, Néjat, Les colloquia romano-baquates: patronage divin et intégration?, in Étrangers dans la cité romaine, Actes du colloque «Habiter une autre patrie» : des incolae de la République aux peuples fédérés du Bas-Empire, Rennes: PUR, 2007, pp. 155-170.
- Beard, Mary - North, John - Price, Simon Religions of Rome. Vol I, Cambridge: University Press, 1998.

⁵²Translated into English by Ștefan Bălțeanu.

Bricault, Laurent - Le Bohec, Yann - Podvin, Jean-Louis, Cultes isiaques en Proconsulaire, in Laurent Bricault (ed.), Isis en Occident. Actes du IIème Colloque international sur les études isiaques, Lyon III 16-17 mai 2002, (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World , 151), Leiden – Boston: Brill, 2003, pp. 221-241.

Bouet, Alain, Campus et Juventus dans les agglomérations secondaires des provinces occidentales, in Revue des Études Anciennes, 101, 3-4, 1999, pp. 461-486.

Cadotte, Alain, La romanisation des dieux. L'interprétation romana en Afrique du Nord sous le Haut-Empire, (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 158), Leiden – Boston: Brill, 2007.

Champeaux, Jacqueline Fortuna. Le culte de la Fortune à Rome et dans le monde romain. II. Les transformations de Fortuna sous la République, (Publications de l'École française de Rome, 64-2), Rome : École Française de Rome, 1987.

Christol, Michel - Lorient, Xavier, P. Alfius Avitus et P. Plotius Romanus, gouverneurs de Galatie. in L'antiquité classique, 70, 2001, pp. 97-121.

Cigaina, Lorenzo Der Kaiserkult bei den Kretern in Bezug auf ihre Teilhabe am Militarwesen des römischen Reiches, in Anne Kolb, Marco Vitale (eds.), Kaiserkult in den Provinzen des Römischen Reiches. Organisation, Kommunikation und Repräsentation, Berlin – Boston: Walter de Gruyter, 2016.

Duthoy, Robert, The Taurobolium. Its Evolution and Terminology, (Études préliminaires aux religions orientales dans l'Empire romain, 10), Leiden: E. J. Brill, 1969.

Fishwick, Duncan, The Imperial Cult in the Latin West. Studies in the Ruler Cult of the Western Provinces of the Roman Empire. Volume II, 1, Leiden-New York-København-Köln: E. J. Brill, 1991.

Idem, The Imperial Cult in the Latin West. Studies in the Ruler Cult of the Western Provinces of the Roman Empire. Volume III: Provincial Cult. Part 3: The Provincial Centre; Provincial Cult, (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 147), Leiden-Boston: Brill, 2004.

Eddy, Samuel K., The Minting of the Antoniniani and the Smyrna Hoard. American Numismatic Society. Numismatic Notes and Monographs No. 156, New York: American Numismatic Society, 1967.

Fitz, Jenő, Legati Augusti Pro Praetore Pannoniae Inferioris, in Acta Antiqua Academiae Scientiarum Hungariae, 11, 1972, pp. 245-324.

Gascou, Jacques, La politique municipale de Rome en Afrique du Nord II. Après la mort de Septime-Sévère, in Hildegard Temporini, Wolfgang Haase (eds.), Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt, II/2, Berlin – New-York: Walter de Gruyter, 1982.

Herz, Peter, Das römische Heer und der Kaiserkult in Germanien, in Wolfgang Spickermann (ed.), Religion in den germanischen Provinzen Roms, Tübingen : Mohr Siebeck, 2001, pp. 91-116.

Kalinka, Ernst, Antike Denkmäler in Bulgarien, Wien: Alfred Hölder, 1905.

Kienast, Dietmar, Römische Kaisertabelle. Grundzüge einer römischen Kaiserchronologie, Darmstadt: Wissenschaftliche Buchgesellschaft, 1996.

Christian Körner, Phillipus Arabs. Ein Soldatenkaiser in der Tradition des antoninisch – severischen Prinzipats, Berlin – New York: Walter de Gruyter, 2002.

Péter, Kovács, Territoria, pagi and vici in Pannonia, in Werner Eck, Bence Fehér, Péter Kovács (eds.), Studia Epigraphica in memoriam Géza Alföldy, (Antiquitas. Reihe 1. Abhandlungen zur Alten Geschichte, 61), Bonn: Rudolf Habelt, 2013, pp. 131-154.

Laes, Christian - Strubbe, Johan, Youth in the Roman Empire. The Young and the Restless Years?, Cambridge University Press, 2014.

Le Bohec, Yann, La Troisième Légion Auguste, (Études d'antiquités africaines), Paris : Éditions du Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, 1989.

Idem, The Imperial Roman Army, translated by Raphael Bate, London-New York: Routledge, 1994.

Loriot, Xavier, Chronologie du règne de Philippe l'Arabe (244 – 249 après J. C.), in Hildegard Temporini, Wolfgang HAASE (eds.), Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt, II/2, Berlin – New-York: Walter de Gruyter, 1975, pp. 789 – 797.

Matei-Popescu, Florian, The Roman Army in Moesia Inferior, Bucharest: Conphys, 2010.

Idem, Statutul juridic și teritoriul Histriei în epoca romană, in Florina Panait-Bîrzescu, Iulian Bîrzescu, Florian Matei-Popescu, Adrian Robu (eds.), Poleis în Marea Neagră: relații interpontice și producții locale (Poleis in the Black Sea Area: Inter-Pontic Relations and Local Productions), Bucharest: Humanitas Publishing House, 2013, pp. 203-232.

Idem, The Western Pontic Greek Cities and the Roman Army, in Victor Cojocaru, Christof Schuler (eds.), Die Außenbeziehungen pontischer und kleinasiatischer Städte in hellenistischer und römischer Zeit. Akten einer deutsch-rumänischen Tagung in Constanța, 20. – 24. September 2010, Stuttgart: Franz Steiner, 2014, pp. 173–208.

Moralee, Jason, For Salvation's Sake. Provincial Loyalty, Personal Religion, and Epigraphic Production in the Roman and Late Antique Near East (Studies in Classics, Outstanding Dissertations, 3), New York – London: Routledge, 2004.

Peachin, Michael, Which Philip?, in Zeitschrift für Papyrologie und Epigraphik, 73, 1988, pp. 98-100.

Perea Yébenes, Sabino, Baños para soldados y el culto de Fortuna, in María Jesús Pérex Agorreta (ed.), Termalismo antiguo. I Congreso peninsular: Actas: Arnedillo (La Rioja), 3-5 octubre 1996, Madrid: UNED, 1997, pp. 149-168.

Piso, Ioan Războiul lui Philippus cu carpii, in In memoriam Constantini Daicoviciu, Cluj-Napoca: Dacia, 1974, pp. 301 – 309.

Segal, Arthur, Religious architecture in the Roman Near East: temples of the basalt lands (Trachon and Hauran), in Ted Kaizer, The Variety of Local Religious Life in the Near East in the Hellenistic and Roman Periods (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World, 164), Leiden – Boston: Brill, 2008, pp. 97-132.

Suceveanu, Alexandru, Contributions à la connaissance du village de la Dobroudja à l'époque Romaine, in Opuscula Scythica, Bucharest: Editura Academiei Române, 2009, pp. 209-224 = Studii și Cercetări de Istorie Veche și Arheologie, 52-53, 2001-2002, pp. 157-172 (in Romanian).

Thiel, Andreas, Das Kastellbad von Jagsthausen – ein Beispiel für die archäologische Denkmalpflege in den 90er Jahren, in Denkmalpflege in Baden-Württemberg. Nachrichtenblatt des Landesdenkmalamtes, 25, 1996, 4, pp. 244–250

Trout, Dennis E., Victoria Redux and the First Year of the Reign of Philip the Arab, in Chiron, 19, 1989, pp. 221-233.